Over the past decade, the Mexican Center for Environmental Law (CEMDA) has become the most important independent environmental law organization in Mexico and certainly one of the most important environmental organizations in all of North America. CEMDA has made tremendous contributions to the development and enforcement of environmental law in Mexico and continues to champion sustainable development policies. CEMDA has become a leading actor for promoting accountability, transparency and good governance in Mexico. A copy of CEMDA's most recent Bi-Annual Report is available at the CEMDA website: www.cemda.org.mx
